THE ANN ARBOR STRIKE.

Chief Arthur Lifts the Boycott on Other Roads.

The Strikers Remain Inactive Pending the Trial of Lake Shore Men for Contempt of Court.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 20.—Chief Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is very reticent regarding the Ann Arbor railroad trouble. On being asked for a definite statement he said: "The situation is simply this —the court granted to the road a temporary injunction restraining me or any of the men from interfering with the traffic of the road and we will certainly do that until the matter is decided one way or the other."

"Suppose the men want to strike, is there anything that can prevent that?"

"I have nothing to say about it," was the reply. "I shall be obliged to obey the order of the court, which has restrained me from interfering in any way, either by giving advice, instructions or anything else. Therefore, for the present, we shall have to let matters rest just as they are."

Judge Ricks, of the United States court, who granted the restraining order to the railroad company, returned from Toledo last night. He was asked for his opinion as to the probable outcome of the trouble, and said:

"I have not the least doubt but that the last of the trouble has been seen. Chief Arthur has been restrained from issuing any orders to the engineers and they have virtually had the heart taken out of them. In my opinion the strike is ended and there is no fear of a general strike on the Lake Shore, which seemed so inevitable on Saturday morning."

There was not an official of the Lake Shore railroad who had any opinion upon the matter.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 20.—Grand Master Sargent, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, in an interview said: "The action on the part of Judge Ricks, of Toledo, looking to the arrest for contempt of court of all engineers who have left their engines on the Lake Shore road rather than handle Ann Arbor freight, is news to me. I left Toledo Friday morning as soon as I saw there was no possible hope for a settlement and came home. Saturday I got a telegram from Chief Arthur saying he and myself had been jointly sued in Judge Taft's court for $300,000 damages by the Ann Arbor road for ordering the strike on their road. Now, there is no provision in the firemen's rules that requires firemen on other roads to refuse to handle freight from a road on which there is a strike, so the present action of Judge Ricks can hardly apply to us. The engineers have such a rule, however, and their rule will now be put to the test as to whether or not it is legal. I realize that both the actions in Judge Taft's and Judge Rick's courts are very important ones and that on their verdict depends much of interest to future laws of railroad organizations. Yesterday I received a telegram that three brotherhood firemen have been discharged from the Lake Shore for refusing to handle Ann Arbor freight. I shall expect the engineers to see that these men get back their places, as they got into the trouble through the engineers living up to this boycott rule, which drew the firemen into it. Chief Arthur is merely enforcing the laws of his order as he finds them, which he is obligated to do. Whether I can be sued for damages for ordering a strike on a railroad as the head of the firemen's organization is one of the questions involved and as soon as I am summoned I shall appear to answer. The question is one of the gravest that ever confronted our organization."

Inasmuch as Chief Arthur has again raised the boycott, matters are moving along as usual on the local connecting roads today. The strikers and the Ann Arbor officials are also resting on their oars awaiting the result of the hearing of the Lake Shore engineers and firemen before Judge Ricks at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Since the arrests on Sunday, no engineers have refused to handle Ann Arbor cars.

LATER.

TOLEDO, March 20.—The hearing of the Lake Shore men has been postponed until tomorrow afternoon to give the engineers' attorneys an opportunity to prepare their cases. The engineers have retained Hon. Frank Hurd and James H. Southard. General Manager Ashley was seen this morning. Speaking of the action of the court in the matter he said: "I don't think that the orders of Judges Ricks and Taft can be construed into attacks upon the brotherhoods, as has been stated. They merely apply to the men as individuals and agents of the carriers. What are the carriers? Things of thin air without the men. The vital part of them all are the employes. Then if laws are made to govern the carriers, should not these men who are in fact the carriers be held responsible. If there is a delay in the movement of freight to the detriment of business or a loss on account of the holding back of perishable freight and such delays and loss arise from the actions of the men then I should think that any fair minded person would say that they were the ones to be held. It is not a matter of brotherhoods but a matter of justice."

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., March 20.—Grand Master Sargent, of the Brotherhood of Firemen, denies the report from Toledo that he had ordered the striking firemen on the Ann Arbor road to return to work. He will not do so unless asked by the grievance committee, which first asked for the strike. Speaking of the boycott strike ordered on by the engineers and then ordered off under instructions from the court, Mr. Sargent said he did not believe in boycotts, that they were un-American, and that there was no clause in the firemen's constitution authorizing them, as there was in the engineer's constitution.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 20.—President John Newell, of the Lake Shore road, arrived here this morning for the purpose of looking after the threatened strike. A committee of engineers came to Cleveland from Toledo last night and held a conference with the engineers running out of Cleveland. It is probable that the engineers on this division will strike unless the men now summoned to appear before Judge Ricks for contempt of court are too severely dealt with. A Cleveland engineer said this morning: "We shall await the outcome of these contempt proceedings before we take a hand in the matter. When they are settled we may take steps to assist our brethren."

DEATH IN A COAL MINE.

Eight Miners Killed in a Coal Pit in England.

LONDON, March 20.—A horrible accident occurred this morning in a coal pit near Chesterfield, Derbyshire. While the cage was descending loaded with miners, going to their day's work the cage, owing to some accident to the apparatus, suddenly fell to the bottom of the shaft and eight of the miners were killed. The affair caused great excitement and men, women and children hurried to the mouth of the shaft to see if their relatives were among the dead.

Coney Island Wants It.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The Coney Island Athletic club, which has up to the present time refrained from bidding on the Corbett-Mitchell contest, will be heard from shortly in connection with the big fight. Matchmaker Newton is now negotiating with Mitchell for his signature to a set of Coney Island club articles of agreement. How much money the club will offer for the great international battle remains to be seen.

AT THE OCEAN'S BOTTOM.

The Freight Steamer Naronic Reported To Be Lost.

Several of the Life Boats Have Been Discovered—All a Mystery Concerning the Crew.

BREMEN, March 20.—After long continued anxiety regarding the fate of the White Star line freight steamer, Naronic, which sailed from Liverpool Feb. 11 for New York, and which had not since been heard of, intelligence has been received showing beyond any doubt that the vessel is lost. The British steamer Coventry, Capt. Wilson, from Fernandina Feb. 19, arrived at this port today. She reports that at 2 o'clock in the morning of March 4 when in latitude 42 north, longitude 46 west, she passed a life boat painted white, bearing the name "Naronic." The boat was floating keel upward. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day another life boat from the Naronic was passed. This boat gave evidences of having encountered heavy weather.

LIVERPOOL, March 20.—Officials of the White Star Line company here have received the full report of the steamer Coventry which arrived at Bremen today. They state the advices show that the last life boat of the Naronic passed by the Coventry was recently occupied by a portion of the Naronic's crew and they expressed the hope that the occupants had been picked up by a passing vessel. They also expressed the hope that the occupants of the other boats had been rescued.

All doubt as to the fate of the Naronic has been dispelled by the sighting of the life boats. That she is now at the bottom of the ocean cannot be disputed, but the cause of the disaster is, of course, still a matter of conjecture. It may be, judging from the latitude and longitude in which the boats were seen that the steamer struck a derelict or an iceberg, though it is still rather early in the season for the ice to be adrift so far south as the Banks. It is hoped that the mystery of the loss of the steamer will soon be cleared up by the landing at some port of members of the crew. A vessel which passed Deal today signalled that she had on board eleven shipwrecked people, and the White Star officials say there is a strong probability that they are a part of the crew of the Naronic. The arrival of this vessel is eagerly awaited, as should the shipwrecked persons on board be from the Naronic, all conjectures as to the causes that led to the foundering of the steamer will be removed.

NEW YORK, March 20.—After a prolonged voyage of 362 days, during which she twice rounded the horn and twice crossed the Atlantic, met with and vanquished the fast British ship Kensington in an ocean race and finally fell in with a whole family of water spouts the American ship, Shenandoah, arrived in port yesterday. The water spouts were sighted five days ago, about 500 miles off the coast.

THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

The Sunday Morning Sermon of Rev. Dr. Moffat, at the First Church.

Dr. D. W. Moffat used Christ's parable of the Good Shepherd, as the basis of the sermon preached by him at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning, taking as his text a part of the eleventh verse of the tenth chapter of John and reading the parable as his scripture lesson.

The people of Palestine to whom Christ was speaking, the doctor said, were familiar with the life of the shepherd, for the vocation was one that was followed by many of their people and the prophets of old had used the good shepherd as typical of the Messiah whom they expected. Hence when Christ said to them, "I am the Good Shepherd," He announced the fact to them that He was that promised Messiah.

The parable is one that teaches Christ's interest in and care for man. The good shepherd in those olden days of Palestine was a man who loved his sheep and was loved in return. He was their guardian, their leader, looking after their wants and protecting them from all danger.

Christ is such a shepherd to man. He is a good shepherd. He knows His sheep and they know Him in return. He is their leader; they know His voice and follow Him. He protects those who have put their trust in Him, and laid down His life that we might be saved.

In speaking of the shepherd's life as it existed in Palestine at Christ's time the doctor said there were some sheep that always followed their leader closely. They were always near to him and received the best food. Others followed at a greater distance and still others sometimes wandered off into the bushes and fell into danger. It is just so with Christian life, and the Christian who lives the nearest to Christ is the safest, the happiest, and gets the best and sweetest food from leading a Christian life.

The doctor used the parable to illustrate many other interesting points and closed with a plea to all to live closer to Christ.

Besides these city officials, members of congress and newspaper men will swell the total to 170,000.

SUDDEN DEATH.

James W. Fleming Passes Away Very Suddenly.

Funeral of the Late Gideon W. Seavey To Be Held Tomorrow—Other Deaths.

James W. Fleming, an aged and well known citizen of Bloomingdale, residing at No. 71 Cass street, was found dead in a water closet at about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Fleming was apparently in the best of health and was missed a few moments when the family instituted a search with the result of finding the deceased as stated. The cause of his death was fatty degeneration of the heart.

Mr. Fleming was one of the best known citizens of Fort Wayne. He was an inventor of no mean ability, having invented the well known Fleming road scraper.

Some years ago, while on a journey to Detroit with his wife, Mrs. Fleming was accidentally killed by the cars. Two sons survive.

Coroner Harrod held an inquest today and returned a verdict in accordance with the facts. The funeral will probably be held Wednesday.

A short time ago Henry Schaefer, a deaf mute, whose home is with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schaefer, at No. 194 Montgomery street, met with an accident while walking along the street car line on Lewis street. He was knocked down and badly hurt. The street car company were in no way to blame, as the boy did not see the car and stepped onto the track directly in front of it. He was taken to Hope hospital, where he lingered until 4.15 yesterday afternoon, when he died. The remains were taken to his parents' home. The boy was aged twenty one years, one month and thirteen days. The funeral will be held at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday from the family residence and 2 o'clock from the St. Paul's Lutheran church, Rev. Sauer, officiating.

Walter Ryan, the three-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Ryan, of No. 60 East Columbia street, died this morning at 3:30 o'clock of inflamation of the bowels. The funeral will be held probably tomorrow.

The remains of Gideon W. Seavey, who died at Los Angeles, Cal., arrived here yesterday afternoon in charge of his brother-in-law, Perry Randall, esq., and Mrs. Seavey. His funeral services will be held tomorrow at his late home, 235 West Main street, at 3 p. m., Rev. J. S. Ainslie officiating, assisted by Rev. D. W. Moffat. The pall bearers will be Col. R. S. Robertson, Judge Edward O'Rourke, F. L. Morris, J. W. Hayden, W. J. Vesey, D. B. Kehler, Arthur S. Wotriner and George W. Stilson.

DWELLING BURNED.

Flames Destroy the Residence of William Rudolph at Lakeside—Quite a Loss.

Early this morning, at about the hour of 2:45, two alarms of fire were turned in in rapid succession—one from box twenty-four and one from box sixty-one. The department located the fire at the residence of William Rudolph, situated in the eastern part of Lakeside. The run was so far that the fire had gained too much headway to be extinguished. A line of hose was stretched from the lake, but it was too late. The fire caught from a store and the family had a narrow escape as the flames were communicated to the stairway. It was reported that Mrs. Rudolph was badly burned. The building was a new one. Mr. Rudolph is a pressman at the Journal office.

The insurance was held in an agency controlled by Frank Schuler and consists of $900 on the house and $300 on the furniture. The loss will be quite heavy.

THE COURTS.

Clarence A. Ransom and Carrie B. Miller, William Berman and Catherine Wulf have been licensed to wed.

The superior court met this morning and, after transacting routine business, adjourned until Thursday.

GERMAN CATHOLICS.

State Convention of the D. R. K. C. V. In This City.

Delegates From Thirty-two Counties in the State—Formation of an Indiana League.

Some fifty delegates, representing thirty-two counties in the state, are in the city for the purpose of organizing a state league of the D. R. K. C. V., or the German Roman Catholic Central society of the United States.

The D. R. K. C. V. is a German Catholic benevolent institution having sick and death benefits. It was organized in Baltimore, Md., in 1855, and at present has a membership of between 45,000 or 50,000 in this country. The headquarters of the society are at Racine, Wisconsin. The grand officers are:

President—Adolph Webber, Racine, Wisconsin.

First Vice President—Nicholas Gonner, Dubuque.

Second Vice President—H. B. Felthouse, Louisville.

Recording Secretary—Alfred Steckle, Milwaukee.

Corresponding and Financial Secretary—J. B. Steckle, Covington.

Treasurer—J. F. Brinkle, Terre Haute.

At the last grand council held at Dubuque, Iowa, it was decided to organize state leagues for the purpose of bringing the members of each state into closer union. Nearly every state has had a meeting and organized and for this purpose the present convention of Indiana societies was called. In this state there are over 5,000 members. In the city of Fort Wayne there are three subordinate branches.

Nearly all the delegates had arrived by yesterday noon and were met at the trains by members of the local organizations and taken to the Aldine hotel, which had been secured for their accommodation. The first session of this state convention was held yesterday afternoon in St. Mary's school house. The meeting was largely attended. An address of welcome was delivered and temporary organization perfected. Frederick Link was chosen chairman pro tem and Joseph Goehren secretary. Several committees were appointed, including one on by-laws. This committee was instructed to draw up a set of rules to govern the state lodge. After an informal discussion of plans for the good of the society the meeting adjourned until morning.

TODAY'S SESSION.

This morning's session opened at 8.30 o'clock. The attendance was large. The committee having in charge the framing of the by-laws made their report and the articles were adopted. The name of the state league will be known as the Indiana German Roman Catholic St. Joseph society and the total number of societies in the league are thirty. It was decided to hold the next state meeting at Lafayette, the third Sunday after Easter, 1894.

The election of officers of the league resulted as follows:

President—George W. Luther, Aurora.

First Vice President—George Jacoby, Fort Wayne.

Second Vice President—Philip Schneider, Vincennes.

Secretary—Joseph Goehren, Fort Wayne.

Treasurer—Joseph Rumley, Laporte.

During the morning Rev. Father Oechtering and Father Dink, of St. Mary's and Rev. Father Koenig, of St. Paul's, were present. The session was a very interesting one. There are 416 members of the society in this city and their names are: St. Charles Borromeus society, of St. Mary's church, St. Boniface society, of St. Paul's church, and St. Martin's society, of St. Peter's church.

Among the delegates present were the following: Peter Schneider, Vincennes; Geo. I. Luther, J. B. Wiltgen, Evansville, R. Thoma, Lafayette; Frederick Reitemiers, Lafayettee, P. J. Ball, Plymouth, A. Schlasser, New Albany, Martin Hogel, George Feuersdein, Attica; Peter Walbrath, Elias Walbrath, Logansport, Joseph Kress, Lafayette, Raymond Flash, Richmond; John Singler, Peter Toepp, South Bend, Martin Rachor, Joe J. Rumely, Laporte; August Herzog, Joseph Granier, jr., Mishawaka.

Most of the delegates will leave the city this evening.

A SYSTEM that can beat faro has been successfully tried at Tacoma. It is simplicity itself, involving nothing more complex than the use of sisters. The gentlemen employing it avoided unseemly notoriety by wearing masks. Sports say the system is not fair, but, as the same sports affirm the fairness of faro, their judgment may be biased.

THAT projected railroad through the Yellowstone Park should never be built. It is simply a branch to some mining camp called Cooke City. The public is not interested in Cooke City, but it is in the Yellowstone Park. They can reach railroad communication without running through the park. Under no conditions should Congress permit the outrage.

THEOSOPHICAL speakers seem to use language that common people may not fully comprehend. For instance, when they proceed to analyze a soul they first shuck off a triple cover which they call material, astral and passional bodies. How much simpler if they would term them the coat, vest and shirt of the spiritual.

'MID TEARS AND FLOWERS

Mrs. Rev. W. R. Northrop Is Buried at Lindenwood.

The Impressive Funerals of Mrs. John Dammeyer, Miss Bridget Sommers and George E. Noll.

Yesterday afternoon, 'midst tears and flowers, the grief of loved ones and the mourning of friends, all that was mortal of Mrs. Rev. W. R. Northrop, the mother of Pastor Stephen A. Northrop, of this city, was consigned to the cold and silent grave in Lindenwood cemetery, the funeral being one of the largest ever held in this city and the services sad, impressive and beautiful.

The cortege, which left the residence of the deceased lady's son, 36 Montgomery street, arrived at the Baptist Tabernacle at 2 o'clock. Here the handsome coffin was taken from the funeral carriage, borne up the aisles of the church and deposited in front of the flower-bedecked pulpit by the following pall bearers: William Carter, A. B. Polhamus, S. F. Bowser, James Gavin, E. G. Anderson, Benj. F. Rosseau, H. A. Philley and W. A. Ross, with John Ferguson, Louis Diether, Frank E. Cratsley, A. Z. Polhamus, John Slater, S. McMahon, O. N. Heaton, J. W. Minnich, C. W. Wells, John Wort, S. A. Burrowes and E. W. Lewis, acting as honorary pall bearers, Mr. John Wort being commander, and Messrs. H. A. Philley and W. A. Ross flower bearers.

The pulpit and platform of the church were profusely decorated with palms and ferns, while suspended over the sacred desk from which for ten years the deceased's son has preached the gospel were two white doves, and, when the handsome floral offerings from friends had been placed on and around the coffin and the officiating ministers and the choir had taken their seats on the platform, the scene presented was a most beautiful one, indeed.

The services were commenced with singing from the choir, consisting of Mrs. O. N. Heaton, soprano; Miss Belle Johnson, alto; H. B. Woolsey, basso; Louis Barron, tenor, and Miss Bella Mills, organist. Rev. J. L. Leeper, the pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, read the scriptural lesson, and Rev. G. W. Stevens, of Chicago, formerly pastor of the First Baptist church in this city, offered prayer.

The sermon, a most able, eloquent and interesting one, was delivered by Rev. J. S. Bryden, of Howell, Mich., a friend of the deceased, and he paid the venerable lady a most touching and tender tribute, taking as his text the words of Paul to Timothy: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept my faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness," etc.

Whether it was egotism for Paul to say this concerning himself, the preacher said in substance, it might be that we would be chargeable with it if we should say the same thing concerning ourselves, but it is our privilege to state it of others as a bequest for those dear ones from whom death has separated them. This lady, the venerable wife and mother, had left such a bequest in the labors and privations of her early struggle with her husband in New York state in their work of building up Denison university, in their work in eastern Michigan, and in all the achievements of her full and well rounded life as the wife of an active and efficient minister of the gospel. In this work she has fulfilled her course, learned the faith, lived the faith, and kept the faith. Such a crown she has now won and such a bequest, to those who knew her in life, she left to her husband and children.

He referred to her early life, to his acquaintance with her and her sons, all of whom are now honored clergymen and doing good work for God. She had reared a family, he said, of whom any parent might well feel proud. Such a bequest as she leaves is better than stocks and bonds, better than lands and gold, for she had built up noble characters and put the love of mother and the love of the Savior into their lives.

Rev. Bryden spoke fitting words to the congregation of the church, to the boys brigade, to the friends, and referred in a beautiful way to the many floral offerings that surrounded the coffin. The custom of giving flowers, he said, on such an occasion, is not ostentation, it is not show. It is a beautiful honor to the dead. God took His prophet of old to Heaven in a chariot of fire. We take them off in a chariot of flowers.

After the services at the church the funeral cortege took up its mournful march to Lindenwood. The procession was a long one and in it marched 104 members of the boys brigade of the church, each of whom wore black badges.

The floral decorations at the funeral were many and beautiful. In addition to pulpit decorations mentioned the above were the following lovely displays:

Gates Ajar—From the deacons of the church and their wives.

Wreath of Roses and Carnations—Young People's Baptist Union of Christian Endeavor.

A Large Spray of Calla Lillies, Palms, Hyacinths and Sheaves of Wheat—Ladies' society.

Sickle of Carnations and Roses—Officers of the Ladies' Missionary society.

Anchor of Roses and Carnations—Boys brigade.

Sheaf of Wheat—Sunday school.

Calla Lilies and Ferns—Choir of the church.

Boquets and Flowers from many of the friends and members of the congregation.

MRS. JOHN DAMMEYER.

The funeral of Mrs. John Dammeyer was held at 1:30 o'clock yesterday from the Emmanuel Lutheran church on West Jefferson street, and was the sixteenth funeral which has been held in that place of worship since January 1 of this year. Rev. C. Gross delivered an appropriate eulogy over the dead, and the services were largely attended. The remains were interred at the Lutheran cemetery. The floral offerings of friends were many and beautiful.

FUNERAL OF GEORGE NOLL.

The funeral of the late George Noll was held at the Cathedral yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The services were very impressive. The floral decorations were very elaborate, particularly the one furnished by the young men. Hundreds of the friends of the deceased were present to pay the last sad tribute to his memory, for George was beloved by every one who knew him. Amid tears and flowers he was laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery.

MISS BRIDGET SOMMERS.

The funeral of Miss Bridget Sommers took place from the St. Patrick's Catholic church yesterday afternoon and was largely attended by the many friends and acquaintances of the lady, who was greatly beloved. Rev. Father Delaney preached the discourse. The floral decorations were elaborate and beautiful.

CASUALTIES.

A Street Car Jumps the Track and Bruises Several Persons—Numerous Other Small Accidents.

A serious accident befell car No. 32, on the Main street line, Saturday evening, shortly after dark directly in front of the new engine house. The car was derailed by a stone and hurled to the curbstones. Five occupants of the car were hurled from their seats into a heap in the aisle. Miss Eva Stier's face was bruised and another lady had her lip slightly cut. Conductor Rodemeyer was hurled from the platform and struck the pavement on his head. He was seriously bruised. Dr. McOscar, Cal. Noll and M. J. Blitz, who were also on the platform, were thrown to to the pavement, but none of them were seriously hurt. Dr. McOscar's overcoat was badly torn. The car was going at the rate of about six miles per hour.

The trolley wire on the Lakeside line was broken last night and for a time traffic was stopped.

Just east of this site the Eckert building is now in process of construction.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

Mayor Zollinger Officiates at a "Full House."

There was a "full house" at police court this morning, Mayor Zollinger presiding.

John Murphy was a drunk who was picked up by Officer Dasler, at 4 o'clock this morning, on East Columbia street. He was making the early morning hours hideous with his noise and was sent off to jail in default of $11.40.

Joseph Collinger was a vag who broke into the calaboose upon his own request. He was badly hurt in the leg, having no doubt fallen or been kicked from a train. His foot swelled up so during the night that he could not walk. He was sent to the poor farm.

Several Smiths, Browns and Jones were on the slate with $17.50 marked opposite their names. They were the people pulled at a house on East Washington street, near Monroe.

It was reported that a man had been robbed of $25 by one of the inmates of Madge Cole's house of ill fame last evening, but the police could not or would not verify the report.

The patrol wagon was called to No. 7 Short street yesterday morning by a report that an old gentleman named Gretsinger had made an attempt to cut his throat with a razor. The report was found to be untrue. However, it developed that the old man was causing no end of trouble. He is over seventy years of age and is drunk most of the time. He has no relatives and an application was this morning made to have him sent to the poor farm. He would not pay his board yesterday morning and the landlord refused to give him his breakfast, hence the disturbance.

A $250 SALOON TAX.

Something Further on the Subject From Mr. D. N. Foster.

EDITOR SENTINEL:

Shall the saloon tax be raised? In addition to what I had to say in your issue of a recent date, I desire to offer a few further suggestions upon that question. I do not wish to discuss the problem from any except an economic standpoint.

I believe the policy of loading the great burden of taxation upon firesides and beneficent industries is wrong, radically wrong. I want to see it righted. I want to see the burdens of taxation equalized. I don't want to see a great mercantile establishment like Root & Co's, giving employment to a hundred men and women and attracting trade to Fort Wayne for fifty miles around, taxed to death to pay for an elaborate police system it doesn't need or to sustain county paupers it doesn't help to make. I don't want to see great manufacturing enterprises like the Pittsburg shops groaning under increased taxation, that the saloon interest may not be called upon to bear its fair share of the public burden.

Mark, please, what I say "its fair share of the public burden." As matters are now one dry goods store pays as much city tax as half a dozen saloons. This is not just unless one dry goods store puts as much expense upon the community as six saloons. If it does thus burden the community the tax is not more than it should bear, otherwise it is. Will anybody dispute that proposition?

I do not want to see the council consider this question in any spirit of hostility to the saloons or the saloonkeepers. Let it be considered merely as a question of public revenue and tax reform; a question of justice between man and man.

The personal property taxed in fifty saloons would not equal the personal property taxed in one dry goods or clothing store. The stock carried by a saloon keeper which can be assessed is but a mere song, and yet he may do quite as profitable a business as a merchant paying a tax on $10,000 worth of goods. That is why a license or special tax is required in order to equalize taxation between the two classes of business.

Indianapolis has a $250 tax upon saloons. When the committee, charged with the drafting of a new city charter, was at Indianapolis, Mayor Sullivan was asked whether there was any dissatisfaction on the part of any of their people with the $250 tax on saloons. He replied: "None at all. When the ordinance first went into effect there was some grumbling on the part of saloon proprietors, but that has all disappeared and everybody is now satisfied. No candidate for office would dare to suggest going back to the old order of things."

By further inquiry I ascertained that the raise in the amount of the tax reduced the number of the saloons very slightly, but that it had the effect of securing a more responsible class of dealers.

As our saloon tax is now but $50 the proposed increase would yield about $20,000 additional annual revenue.

The question of increasing the saloon license in this city is provoking considerable discussion. The members of the city council should decide what is right in this matter and then go ahead and do it.

Owing to inadequate appropriations for traveling expenses for the United States civil service commission for the current fiscal year, it has been found necessary to cancel the appointments for many of the examinations advertised in the schedule for 1893. The examination at Fort Wayne, advertised for the 25th of March, is one of the examinations so canceled.

UNTIL a few years ago United States senators who were not chairmen had no clerks at public expense. Of late years, and in spite of stubborn resistance on the part of the house, the senate has voted clerks for its own rank and file. But when a senator's clerk is a member of his family or an especially valuable political agent it made a good deal of difference whether the pay of the clerk were $6 a day for the session or $2,000 or $2,500.

PALM Sunday, the anniversary of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem, over eighteen hundred years ago, will be benefittingly commemorated next Sunday in every Roman Catholic, Protestant Episcopal and Lutheran parish in the world. In addition to this reference will be made to the occasion from many of the pulpits of other denominations which hold to the great truths of Christianity and point morals from the life and works of the Savior. While the Catholic churches make by far the greater feature of the day than any other denomination having a ritualistic service there has arisen a tendency among the latter in recent years at least, to pay more attention to the anniversary.

WASHINGTON is full of office seekers just now. They crowd the hotels, they have filled up the boarding houses, and they throng the corridors of the great departments and the lower halls of the white house. The civil service rule seems to make no difference in their demands, and President Cleveland has to send away a large number of them every day. His experience during his last administration enables him to dispose of them with refreshing rapidity. He has fixed hours for his receptions and such as get past the clerks and his private secretary are given a short audience and are sometimes turned down with a word. The president does business rapidly. He is a good judge of men and he knows the office-seeking type at a glance. He does not receive office seekers until about 10 o'clock, though they begin to come much earlier. They hand their cards to the doorkeepers and take seats in the anteroom. At about 10 o'clock President Cleveland is ready to have them ushered ...

The Troubles of Presidents.

President Cleveland is having less trouble with office seekers than any of his predecessors. His action during his last term has helped him to this position of things. President Harrison never ... office seekers to ... and the civil service commission ... a good many. President William Henry Harrison was worried to death by the office seekers. When Zach Taylor was nominated a troop of office seekers followed him on his way to Washington, and one of them actually slipped his application into Taylor's pantaloons pocket without his knowing it. They worried him almost to death after he got to Washington. It has been the same with all the presidents down to Cleveland. Garfield was killed by an office seeker, and it was an office holder who pulled Andrew Jackson's nose. James Buchanan had a way of taking a man's papers and chatting to him about other subjects in such a friendly manner that he was sure he was going to get his place, but he never granted such applications. General Grant often promised appointments which were never given and his drafts were not always honored by his cabinet ministers. Postmaster General Jewell, it is said, once told an applicant who brought a recommendation from General Grant that the president had but little influence in the matter, and that he was running the postoffice department.

There is one thing about Cleveland's treatment of office seekers. He never tells a man he is going to give him a position when he has no idea of carrying out his promise, and few people leave the white house with a wrong impression in this regard. On the other hand, when he wants to give a man an office and expects to favor him he tells him so, and he makes lots of friends by so doing. It was different with President Harrison. He seemed to bestow favors grudgingly, and even after he had decided to give a man what he wanted he would let him go away with the idea that his application was refused.

A National Need.

In speaking of the needs of the geniuses of this country a well-known professional man recently said: "What we need in this country is a kind of convent, where geniuses could go to perfect their ideas—paint their pictures, write their epics, philosophies, and plays, experiment with chemistry and mechanism and even study. Such a convent should have no religious basis or backing, but be a refuge to which a man might repair, to get away from the distracting noise and bother of city life, the worry of housekeeping and pot-boiling, the anxieties of rent paying, the interruption of so-called social duties; a place, in short, where a man could put his mind to the biggest thing that he knew how to do or wanted to do, where there would be no hours to keep or obligations to meet, and where the society would be brainy and stimulating. I believe that such a place would be the making of some young men whose abilities are crushed out by the struggle to keep square with the landlord and the grocer."

THE Chinese of New York send home large amounts of money to China, not in hundreds, but in thousands of dollars. At the same time, many of the Chinese appear to have at command all the leisure they wish. There are usually several idlers in a Chinese shop of any kind ready to advise and comment as sales go on. The Chinese, too, seem to be able to linger over their meals at their own restaurants, and they are constantly traveling, not only from one part of the city to another, but from city to city. There is also a lively correspondence between Chinamen here and in other parts of the country. They use postal cards freely, knowing that few persons can read their communications. A Chinese message on a postal card looks like an illuminated missal, as part of the communication is usually in brilliant red ink.

THE village of Chincoteague, on the Virginia island of that name, is without other government than that administered by a local justice of the peace and a county constable, although the place has more than one thousand inhabitants. Good order prevails, however, in spite of the fact that a great many men are idle for many weeks in summer. A strictly enforced local option law might be esteemed in part the cause of the prevalent good order but for the fact that the working of the law is considerably mitigated by a lively "jog trade" with the mainland.

SOME FANCY DANCES.

DAMES AND DAMSELS ESCHEW THE NEW YORK CHOPPAN.

Serpentine and Skirt Dances Have Become All the Rage—What a St. Louis Paper Says About the Craze—Some Pen Sketches.

THE PLEADING ... [illegible] ... of dances ... St. Louis has claimed the ... has ... been the birthplace and home of some of the foremost dancers in the country, and it is a well known fact that St. Louis girl has no lack of ... summer resorts ... that she is from St. Louis ... noted for good dancers.

Several years ago a fashionable fancy for learning fancy steps originated in this city, says the Post-Dispatch, and was set afloat and developed into a well defined fad under the patronage and energetic example of a well known St. Louis social light—Mrs. Gen. J. B. Henderson. In 1888 the first class, composed entirely of society ladies, organized and commenced to learn fancy dancing at the residence of Mrs. Henderson, and this was before the fad had commenced to become popular, or had even arisen in any other city, so that St. Louis can claim the merit of having started this craze which has gone beyond this city, and in New York, Washington and other large cities reached gigantic proportions and taken hold upon the mind of many representative society women to such an extent that they are no longer satisfied until they can equal regular professional dancers.

The first St. Louis class was taught behind closed doors and the names of those who led the tendency to join the class were kept as religiously secret as if they had been guilty of some frivolous or undignified action. After this Mrs. Henderson went to Washington and nobody else seemed able to take her place and time for awhile the enthusiasm about learning fancy dances seemed to die out and remain quiet in St. Louis among the multitude until every other large Eastern city had taken up the craze and carried it out to such perfection that fancy dancing has become almost as essential to a society girl's education as calisthenics. Those women who married long before such fashions were organized are even more enthusiastic in their determination to keep up with the fashion than some of the young girls.

After Mrs. Henderson went to Washington she kept up her class and sent to St. Louis for Mr. Jacob Mahler to come to the capital to take charge of her classes, which were composed of many ladies whose names are as familiar to St. Louis people as to those of the capital city. Among those who were members of this fancy dance class were Mrs. Gen. Phil Sheridan, Miss Condit Smith, Mme. Horatio Guzman, wife of the Minister from Nicaragua; Mrs. Col. Anderson, a former social light in this city; the wife of Chief Justice Field, Mrs. T. S. McMason, Mrs. Col. Winthrop, wife of a prominent naval officer; the three Misses Mendonza, daughters of the Brazilian Minister; Miss Jennie Sher-ril, Miss Florence Miller, daughter of Attorney-General W. H. H. Miller, Miss Maud Fuller, daughter of Chief Justice Fuller, and many others. Mrs. Levi P. Morton organized a class last winter, February, 1892, and wrote to St. Louis for a teacher. Mrs. Russell Harrison and Mrs. McKee were to have joined Mrs. Morton's class, but went abroad. Washington has been noted for its craze upon the subject and yet a St. Louis society leader was the originator of the fashion there as well as here.

But St. Louis has taken hold of the fashion with both hands at last and last season and this season there are a large number of ladies who have attended private classes in ballet dances. Although the ladies of others cities consider the art of fancy dancing is a part of their education and do not consider it necessary to conceal such a beautiful accomplishment, St. Louis ladies are still under the impression that, to a certain extent, they must keep their names from the knowledge of the public and hide their light under a bushel.

Several classes are taught behind closed doors, and a well known married lady electrified her friends by dancing for them one evening after a dinner she gave during the season just past.

After a number of guests had taken their departure she had a whispered conversation with those who were left and the gentlemen all accompanied their host to the smoking room, and the hostess disappeared for a few minutes. horns like a bat protruding forward, and wings of black lined with crimson and studded with silver stars exactly like the pinions of a bat.

The graceful and popular skirt dance nearly every one has seen, but the Spanish dances and the Gorja ... which was much like an old-time negro dance, were less familiar.

Two young girls danced the tambourine dance after the whole class had done so, and they introduced a few new figures, kicking the tambourines to keep time with the music with perfect ease. Two of the young girls went through exercise of strength, also to show their agility, for no weakly delicate woman can become a good fancy dancer, and those who are ambitious to learn what is known in the ballet as toe walking must have their first three toes the same length by nature, or they never learn to do toe walking successfully, which goes to prove that dancers are born as well as made. One of the young ladies showed how easy it is to sit down flat on the floor with both legs extended straight out at the sides, and two others stood back to back, one passing her arms around her companion and lifting her easily to a position across her hips as she bent herself double while supporting the weight of her companion. She then placed her arm around her partner and lifting her so that she rested upon her hips with her face bent backward, she executed some steps as if she carried no burden at all, and the girl doing the lifting was slenderly and gracefully built.

The Columbian Stamp in Trouble.

Ten miles from Asheville is a postoffice known as Candler. Mr. J. S. Henry of Charlottesville city sends a good many letters there, and lately has been using the Columbian stamps. One day he received a letter from his correspondent there saying that the postmaster at Candler had made him pay regular letter postage on every letter he (Mr. Henry) had sent with the Columbian stamp on it, and compelled him to state who it was sending letters "with them pictures on them for stamps" so he could "have the man indicted." In vain did Mr. Henry's correspondent explain and remonstrate. The letters with the Columbian stamps were not forthcoming until as the postmaster said, "the postage was paid."

Orations to Sell.

It is the custom in France for panegyrics to be pronounced at the graves of notable persons, and even obscure men have their praises sung in the cemetery. This has resulted in the appearance of a professional panegyrist, always to be found in a wine shop hard by the cemetery. He is known as "Monsieur du Cimetiere." He has on hand an assortment of orations to suit customers. All he needs are a few hints about the life and career of the defunct, and he evolves the rest from his imagination. NECESSITY FOR PASTIMES.

As Essential to Man's Happiness as Oil to Machinery.

All men feel the necessity of breaking the bow. The veriest sloth will soon fall out of his senses if he does nothing but count the ticks of the clock. So man has invented for his solace an infinite variety of deliberate pastimes, artificial work of head or hand, which dull his perception of the slipping sands as well as productive labor does that of the artisan. The energy which has been cited to show that there are no signs of decrepitude or senility in the world—society—mankind, as things go, is no where more manifest than in the elaborate and costly preparations for amusement, for short pastime, which ensues as soon as people get respite from the task of bread winning. A notable and somewhat unsatisfactory feature in this manner of work is that the professional is coming more and more to the front, to the discouragement of the amateur. To excel in billiards, in cricket, in golf, tennis, or any of the myriad games played with balls of various size and material, more time must be filched from serious business than can by any means be afforded by those who have to earn a living. To become proficient in the sports now postulates an apprenticeship at least as severe and as prolonged as that of any skilled handicraft, and the extraordinary perfection attained by those classed as "gentlemen cricketers," as distinguished from "players," implies that for them it is the business of life and not mere relaxation. The tendency of all games in this age of wealth and leisure is to turn players into athletes, and in these, as to serious work, "amateur" is synonymous with "immature."

Yet games are of such excellent use in themselves, not only as a recreation from strain, but as safety valves for the dangerous or mischievous forces in human nature, diverting the thoughts from unhealthy tendencies and chastening the frames into symmetry and grace, that it were a pity if room were not kept for people who can never aspire to professional proficiency. They are potent safe-guards against two of the most deplorable deformities to which human nature is liable—dullness in the hard worked and vanity in the idle; each of which brings many a man and woman into a tragic degree of ridicule. Some young people are so constituted as to feel no inclination to games, but very much the reverse; their minds are of such fiber as to retain elasticity without having recourse to systematic diversion. That they are not characters of small capacity which exhibit this trait may be shown by quoting two well known instances of men highly distinguished in widely different careers. The duke of Wellington could never be induced when at school to throw any spirit into the sports of other boys; he preferred wandering about alone to the engrossing occupation of football or cricket. Rousseau consumed days and nights in close study in an attempt to master the game of chess; but, though he persevered in repeated endeavors they all came to nothing, for as often as he sat down to a game all that he had learned went out of his head. But such instances are exceptional, and in most characters hard work, unrelieved by competitive games, is apt to produce "grooviness"—and superfluous leisure, stupidity. As is difficult to imagine a young woman fond of lawn tennis falling a prey to the morbid self-consciousness which consumed the Comtesse de Senecterre, whom Tallemant des Reaux describes as a beautiful but very foolish woman. One of her fancies was to have pillows of every size in her bed—even for her thumbs—for she prided herself on her beautiful hands and slept with them open to keep the joints small. Athletes, it is true, are peculiarly prone to vanity, but the form that vice assumes in them is that of the pride of life, by many degrees more pardonable than the deliberate self-love of indolence.

It is a long descent from games which exercise mind or body to those of pure chance, yet these have as firm a hold upon human inclination as if they possessed merit in themselves. No more piteous impression can be made upon a mind capable of reflection than is left by a visit to the tables at Monte Carlo. Hour after hour, day after day, year after year, the same crowds gather round them, blind to the beauty of sapphire sea and glorious sunshine, content to swelter and scramble and wrangle—for what? Well, they are under thrall of one of two motives—two deplorable motives; one the lowest, the other the saddest that can be conceived. For the first is avarice—of all lust the most obscene, of all passions the most disastrous. Valor, self-devotion, truth, humanity, may too complex is human nature coexist with much that is evil in a character, but avarice taints the whole being; unlike other desires, it is never satisfied, it is never at rest, nothing sweet can flow from the source which it has polluted. Let there be no mistake or palliation about this. Avarice is the primary lure to the Casino. Take away the gold and who would be so childish as to play for counters or sweetmeats? The other and subsidiary motive which collects a crowd round the tables is the desire of idle men to rid themselves of that most precious possession—time—which, once it is gone, can never be recalled, the loss of which is ever the cause of fruitless regret.

"Knowledge comes, but wisdom tarries;" but here even knowledge seems to be set at contempt. Crowds of educated people, with ready access to all the stores of knowledge laid up through the laborious ages for present use, affirm the contemptible creed of luck. Never was there a god so false, never one before whom so many bowed the knee in profound and ignorant faith. It would be lost labor to combat the belief—almost universal and wholly ineradicable among gamblers—in an inscrutable influence upon human occasion, capable of being offended or propitiated. It differs in no respect from idolatry, for civilized and educated people behave just as the pagan does in regard to the Great Spirit; the souls of his ancestors, or the deified powers of nature. It is in fact a kind of inverted animism. "Don't disappoint your luck"—the gambler's cardinal precept—implies the same dread of offending a powerful being, impatient of slight, as still moves the inhabitants of Tinnevelly, in Indo-China, to lay brandy and cheroots on the grave of a certain British officer whom they hated and feared on account of his tyrannical rule over them, believing that his spirit can only be kept from mischief by being plied with the same little luxuries he loved when alive. "The Lord thy God is a jealous God!" is dogma not peculiar to Jewish worship; it is the idea uppermost in all religions.—Blackwood's Magazine.

VOLCANOES ON THE MOON.

Various Astronomers Have Believed in Their Existence.

The elder Herschel fully believed that on one occasion he saw the flames of an active volcano on the moon, and only a few years ago, 1875, Dr. Klein announced his discovery of a crater on the lunar surface. Still, the prevailing impression among astronomers is that the moon is a dead world, and while the evidence of past volcanic action on the satellite are abundant, its internal fires have long since been extinguished.

The controversy on the supposed existence of active volcanoes on the moon was renewed and waged with much bitterness during the year 1879 by the publication in the Scientific American of an account of a supposed volcanic eruption on the moon, which was viewed by Prof. John Hammes and his son on the evening of November 17, 1878, at Oskaloosa, Iowa. Hammes, if the writer remembers rightly, lives at Keokuk, Iowa, and spends a good part of his time traveling over the country with a twelve-inch telescope, through which he shows the moon and planets to students and professors of colleges which are not able to possess instruments of their own. In this capacity Mr. Hammes has become quite familiar with luna and the other planets, as well as with his instrument.

He describes the great lunar eruption as lasting a full half hour, and as being as plainly visible as any other object or piece of scenery on the lunar surface. His son also saw the phenomenon but describes the eruptive streaks as being less fanshaped than those noted by the father, which, however, makes but little difference, as no two men see alike. According to the sketch furnished by the professor, this, the most wonderful of all volcanoes, is in the vicinity of Para, Bianchus and Nicolai, as given on Beer & Madler's map of the moon. As the phenomenon was altogether unexpected, Mr. Hammes was not prepared for taking measurements of the height of the eruptive streaks. In the absence of more exact data he furnishes his sketch, which enables one to form a pretty good opinion both of the height and width of this, the only clearly observed lunar eruption on record, as well as showing quite plainly the clearly defined crater from which the stream of fire proceeded.

The editor of this department of the Republic was in Oskaloosa the night upon which this remarkable lunar eruption took place, and had taken a peep at the man in the moon less than half an hour before the famous "Hammes volcano" belched forth its stream of lava.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured.

Three days is a very short time in which to cure a bad case of rheumatism but it can be done, if the proper treatment is adopted, as will be seen by the following from James Lambert, of New Brunswick, Ill.: "I was badly afflicted with rheumatism in the hips and legs when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It cured me in three days. I am all right today; and would insist on every one who is afflicted with that terrible disease to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm and get well at once." 50 cent bottles for sale by druggists.

A Forward Step.

The university of Edinburgh has taken a rather remarkable step for a conservative institution. It has decided to grant diplomas in five specialties, viz.: ophthalmology, mental disease, laryngology with aural and nasal surgery, medical jurisprudence, midwifery and gynecology. These, as we understand, will be conferred on regular medical graduates who have taken the five years' course and who subsequently take a year's course in the special study for which they wish to qualify.

RAILWAYS AND SHOPS.

James Farmer Nearly Crushed To Death.

A Machinist Falls From a Wagon and Is Injured—Local and Personal Gossip.

In his haste to leave the east car shop and join his family at his pleasant home last Saturday evening, James Farmer attempted a reckless feat which resulted in bad injuries to himself. Just as the steam whistle announced the end of the day's work an engine was pushing some cars through the shops. Instead of waiting until the train had passed, Mr. Farmer attempted to pass out by its side. He evidently miscalculated the space between the car and wall of the arch, for his body was rolled and pressed almost out of shape in making the passage, the car dropping him just outside the enclosure. Dr. Stemen and the patrol wagon were summoned and the injured man was removed to his home, No. 51 Lillie street, where an examination of his injuries was made. His breast, back and hips were badly crushed and bruised. While his injuries are not considered dangerous, they are severe enough to keep him from his work for several weeks. Mr. Farmer is married and has several children.

HAD HIS FINGERS PINCHED.

While standing at the ladies entrance to the Pittsburg depot Saturday night, a stranger, supposed to be a traveling salesman, accidentally placed his hand against the door casing in such a manner as to get his fingers between the door and the jam. Just at that instant some one pushed the heavy door shut and the tips of the man's fingers were painfully pinched. He left on No. 9 and his name could not be learned.

INJURED IN A RUNAWAY.

Charles L. Fullmer, while driving on Buchanan street Saturday evening, was thrown from his buggy and severely bruised about the shoulders and breast. The horse became frightened and started to run. Mr. Fullmer tightened the reins, but the bit broke, and the horse wheeled to one side and upset the buggy with the above result. Dr. W. H. Myers, who attended the injured man, says he is also injured internally. Mr. Fullmer is a moulder employed at the Bass works. He lives at 106 Gay street.

A BADLY MASHED HAND.

James Parmgant, who lives at No. 15 Madison street, met with an accident in the Pittsburg shops Saturday afternoon, that will disable him for several weeks. While handling some heavy machinery, a piece fell upon his hand, crushing and lacerating it frightfully. He was taken home, where Dr. Stemen dressed the wounded hand. The physician says he thinks he can save the member.

HAD HIS ARM BROKEN.

W. P. Marks, a machinist, employed in the Pittsburg shops, will be unable to work for several weeks. Last Saturday evening Mr. Marks was in the act of climbing upon a farmer's wagon at his home on South Lafayette street, to ride down town. He stepped upon the hub of the wheel and was in the act of raising his foot to the bed of the wagon when the horses started up unexpectedly, throwing him to the ground, breaking the bone of his right arm between the elbow and shoulder and dislocating the elbow joint. The fracture is a bad one. Dr. J. E. Miller is the attending physician. The injured man is one of the veteran machinists in the Pittsburg shops, and his comrades will hear of his misfortune with sorrow.

Charley Rice and Fred Engelking, of the Pittsburg blacksmith shop, who were detained from their work a part of last week on account of sickness in their families, reported this morning.

J. Haudenschild, boilermaker in the Pittsburg shops, reported for duty this morning. He was recently presented with a baby by his wife and his absence is thus accounted for. Lullabies, catnip tea, etc.

William Studer took his comrades and the foreman of the Pittsburg boiler shop by surprise Saturday evening, when he tendered his resignation. He is not decided as to future movements, but he will not leave the city.

Dennis O'Day came in on the Plymouth accommodation this morning and is circulating among his Fort Wayne friends. Mr. O'Day's early life was spent in building railroads and he still takes a great interest in that line.

Daniel Feigen and William Neizer, of the Pittsburg copper shop, returned home last Saturday. They attended Cleveland's inaugural and afterwards made a tour of the Atlantic states. Both enjoyed the trip and returned in good health and spirits.

Wabash Engineer Jos. Watkins, of the Lafayette accommodation, running over the Wabash between this city and Lafayette, has been drawn as one of the jurors in the approaching trial of the opera house rioters. The trials will probably open next week.

Pittsburg trainmen who are off duty: Engineer F. H. Whitney, lame back; Engineer P. Quinn, sprained foot; Engineer I. Burger, sick; Fireman W. Vanarsdale, wife sick; Fireman T. Teagarden, sick; Firemen G. H. Brown and W. R. Welden, business.

Engineer Newhart, recently promoted from a fireman, left today with Wabash engine No. 25 for Wolcottville, to work on the new road. Tomorrow engine No. 479 will leave for the same place. Both engines have been thoroughly repaired and are as good as new.

The Wabash company began in earnest this morning the work of ballasting the new Detroit-Chicago line. Two gravel trains, with double crews and four steam plows, were put in operation in the vicinity of Wolcottville and the work will be pushed along just as rapidly as possible.

The Huntington Herald says: "Marshall B. Humphrey, son of Engineer John Humphrey, is the guest of his father and of Colonel Milligan's family. He is an employe in the office of the superintendent of motive power of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railway, in Fort Wayne."

Denny Murphy, the Nickel Plate yard conductor who was so severely injured last Friday afternoon, may recover. Dr. Myers, the attending physician, said that he had strong hopes of such a happy event. Murphy passed through the painful operation of straightening his backbone remarkably well and is now able to move his lower limbs at will. It was feared, should his life be spared, he would be paralyzed in the lower limbs.

Engine No. 153, of the main line of the Wabash, has been transferred to the new line. Engineer Swartz and Fireman Reed accompanied the engine and will have charge of her temporarily or until the work of ballasting the new road is completed. Their headquarters will be Wolcottville.

Those carpenters who during the winter were employed in the railway and other shops are leaving those establishments and preparing for work at their trade. There is every indication of plenty of work the coming season for carpenters. Already over a dozen houses are in course of erection and the season has hardly opened.

Edward Lambert, who for some time has been the day operator in Agent E. S. Phillip's office at the Lake Shore depot, has received notice of his appointment to a responsible position in the division superintendent's office at Chicago. The departure of Mr. Lambert from the Fort Wayne office will leave a vacancy to fill which a line of promotions will be necessary.

THE LARGEST BABY.

A Young Giant Who Weighed Nearly Twenty-Four Pounds at Birth.

The baby which for several years held the height and weight bases the record as being the largest on record was born in Ohio on the twelfth day of January, 1879. The average baby weighs from six to nine pounds. This giant infant's weight was exactly twenty-three and three-fourths pounds. Its height was a boy was 30 and one-half inches, or length (the common cost of babies ranges from sixteen to twenty inches in length) and had a head measuring nineteen inches. "Its cute little pink foot" measured five and one-half inches and was as thick as that of the average 18 months old child. About six years prior to this extraordinary event the same woman gave birth to an eighteen-pound baby which was twenty-four inches in height, says the St. Louis Republic. Although this may be thought to be a wonderful story by those not informed as to the real facts, it will be shorn of some of its seeming marvelousness when it is known that the parents themselves were two of the largest people of the United States at the time of the occurrences related above. They were Mrs. and Mr. M. V. Bates, the former known as the "Nova Scotian Giantess," and the latter as the "Kentucky Wonder." Mrs. Bates was (if my memory is not at fault, she died some five or six years ago) seven feet nine inches in height, the father of the baby giant being about two inches less in stature. Prior to the arrival of this Titanic infant upon the scene the "largest baby on record" was the "giant baby" of the London, England, medical hospital's preserved specimen, which measures twenty-four inches in height, and has a head thirteen and one-half inches in circumference.

In March, 1879, less than two months after the birth of the gigantic Bates baby, Mrs. Reuben Griffiths, of Whitebreast township, Warren county, Iowa, gave birth to a seventeen and one-half pound baby, twenty-one inches in length, and with a head lacking less than a half inch of coming up to the London medical hospital record.

Footprints of Father Adam.

Mount Samanala, or Adam's Peak, one of the highest mountains on the island of Ceylon, is the scene of a remarkable geological formation and the spot around which many curious legends and superstitions cluster. According to the Mohammedan stories, Adam, after the fall and expulsion from the Garden of Eden, was taken by an angel to the top of the mountain, which now bears his name. From its summit the mind's eye of the first man saw all the ills which in after years should afflict humanity. These harrowing sights were such a weight upon the man, who, notwithstanding his sin in the garden, was yet a good man, that his foot left its imprint upon the solid rock, his tears forming a lake, the footprint and lake being both still visible. The footprint itself is 52 feet long by 27 feet wide and shows six perfect toes, the smaller one being as large as a good sized man's fist. For centuries devout Buddhists have made annual pilgrimages to the spot, and tradition says that the chain bridge across the canyon near the sacred footprint was put there by direction of Alexander the Great.—Philadelphia Press.

A Thirteen Coincidence.

There are a number of people in this country who believe that Cleveland would have been elected four years ago but for the fact that he was yoked with the old Roman, Allen G. Thurman; this same set of people (they are a little superstitious, of course) also believe that Thurman might have been elected but for one thing—the thirteen curse has followed him through life. Look at this:

ALLEN G. THURMAN
BORN NOV. 13, 1813
NOMINATED JUNE 7,
ELECTION DAY, NOV. 6
THE RED BANDANA

He was born the 13th of November, 1813; the word, "Allen G. Thurman" contain thirteen letters; the words and figures in "born November 13, 1813," contain thirteen characters. Add the "7" of June and the "6" of November and you have 13, add the 1, 8, 1 and 3 of his birth year and you have another 13; finally, count the letters in "The Red Bandana."—St. Louis Republic.

Not to Please the Public.

Young Lady, frankly I know you are very famous, Mr. Greatname, but although I have read a number of your articles, I did not like them one bit.

Mr. Greatname, literary lion: Of course you did not like them my dear young lady. How could you? They were not written to please the public.

Young Lady: Not written to please the public?

Mr. Greatname: No, indeed. They were written to please the magazine editors.—Yankee Blade.

Had Heard the Worst.

Cousin: You look sad. Have you heard some bad news?

Fanele: Yes.

"What was it? Did your tailor tell you he wouldn't trust you any longer?"

"No, that wasn't it. My wife came in and told me that the manager of the largest dry goods store in town said my credit was good for anything in the store."

QUANTRELL AND JAMES.

A Woman's Story of the Burning of Lawrence.

"I was living in Lawrence, Kansas, when Quantrell's men swooped down and burned the town," said Mrs. Ann Boettler to a Globe-Democrat man. "There were very few able bodied men in the place at the time, and the guerrillas had everything their own way. They massacred 150 people. Jesse James, then a beardless boy of 16, was with the gang. I was living with a woman named Stephens, whose husband was a federal soldier. He had been wounded and sent home. Jesse James and three or four others of the gang invaded the house with the avowed purpose of killing Stephens, who was confined to his bed. He had been shot through the hips and his body was paralyzed from the waist down.

"Mrs. Stephens met the guerrillas at the door and begged for her husband's life, but they only laughed at her. They crowded past her and approached the bed. 'Would you murder a wounded man?' asked Stephens. 'Oh, I guess you'll only be nicely killed,' said James. 'I've killed a lot of people today, and I want to make it an even twenty.' Mrs. Stephens had a large navy revolver under her pillow. He seized it and began firing. You never saw such scampering in your life as those guerrillas did to get out of range. They rushed outside and fired a volley through the windows, breaking Mr. Stephens' left arm. Then they set the house on fire. I was too scared to do anything, but with my help Mrs. Stephens managed to get her husband out of doors, and she stood between him and the guerrillas. They told her to stand aside or they would kill her too, but she refused. Mr. Stephens still held his pistol, and they were afraid to approach to drag her away. Her husband commanded her to go and leave him to his fate, but she would not move. The guerrillas fired on her and she fell across her husband. They fired again, and Stephens fell back dead."

Grounds for a Discharge.

The fussy man's son was fooling with a gun and it attracted the attention of the father.

"What's the matter with it?" inquired the father.

"It won't work," said the boy, making another effort to shoot it.

"Won't work?" quoted the father seriously, "then why don't you discharge it?" and just at that moment it went off with a terrific boom.

Chinese Curiosity Shops.

There are two kinds of curiosity shops in the flowery kingdom—one is intended for guileless globe-trotters and the nouveaux riches, the other for collectors and persons of taste. In the former the proprietor asks anywhere from 200 to 2,000 per cent profit on his goods; in the latter he is satisfied with anything between twenty-five and 100 per cent.

Cholerine in Pennsylvania.

Swickley, Penn.: We had an epidemic of cholerine, as our physicians called it, in this place lately, and I made a great hit with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I sold four dozen bottles of it in one week and have since sold nearly a gross. This Remedy did the work and was a big advertisement for me. Several persons who had been troubled with diarrhoea for two or three weeks were cured by a few doses of this medicine.

A CAT MADE HIS FORTUNE.

How a Young Artist Was Saved From Suicide.

[illegible] years ago Maurice Lenoir [illegible] to copy the [illegible] of a great classic [illegible] of his own. Needless to recount the disillusions, privations, rebuffs of the nervous reactions of the days when he received a few francs. The increased pressure of poverty, the resulting blows of ill-luck [illegible] unbearable. The thin blood of semi-starvation mounted to his brain, creating visions of suicide.

[illegible] he bought poison. Returning [illegible] something rubbed past his feet. He lighted a candle and began to write a few lines merely to save the world [illegible]. Suddenly there sprang upon the table a little yellow kitten. It rubbed caressingly against his face. Evidently a waif, one of the surplus unpublished waifs of nobody's cat. It was thin and famished. Its form was frayed by the jaws of some dog.

"One may be tired of life," said Maurice, "but one does not leave a guest hungry."

With bread and milk all he had, he fed the kitten, then warmed it within the breast of his coat, where it caressed with its tongue the hand that held it, then purred itself to sleep.

Maurice reflected [illegible] the refuge of one who was out of hope, ties of affection or responsibilities. In receiving this kitten I have assumed a duty. To place this little creature by warmth upon my heart and then turn that warmth to ice would be betrayal! At least I will [illegible] tomorrow."

In the morning the kitten appeared so pretty Maurice painted and was able to sell the portrait. Another was solicited, and another.

M. Lenoir's pencil became a fashion. He reserved his dream of a classic canvas and painted only cats in all postures and colors, yellow, black, white, gray and tabby. He painted cats in visions (?) the masks of drowsiness or eagerness, the [illegible] charm and wisdom adored in old Egypt.

The yellow kitten that saved his life afterwards made his fortune. And M. Lenoir proved not ungrateful; the yellow cat, now patriarchal in tribe, has his cushion and his cup in the atelier and wears a golden collar inscribed "To my benefactor."

"I Have Never Bought Carpets Anywhere Else Which Have Worn So Long as Those Bought of You."

This remark recently made to us by one of our customers, who is a careful house-keeper, of many years of experience, is very similar to what others have said to us.

Many years ago we adopted the policy of handling only well known standard makes of carpets. Every season there is offered us carpets at two and a half or five cents a yard less than standard makes cost us, and when competition is close, there is a temptation to buy these goods, which, while all right as to appearance and weight, do not have the wearing qualities of those makes of carpets which have been long before the public, and been fully tested in every way.

Under the policy of never touching such goods the sales of our Carpet Department have steadily grown, and the Carpets we have sold have never disappointed you when put upon your floors.

One full line of Spring Carpets is now in. Our Body Brussels assortment is larger than ever before and includes the prettiest designs we have seen.

Do not forget that we are the Fort Wayne agents for the Celebrated Lowell Ingrain Carpets.

They cost you no more than other pieces of Extra Super Ingrains but will wear longer and keep their color better than any other brand.

LADIES' PETITION

To the Members of the Common Council of This City,

For the Establishment of a Public Library—Society Gossip About Affairs in Polite Circles.

The Woman's Club League are circulating a petition, addressed to the mayor and members of the city council, asking for the establishment of a public library in this city, mention of which has been made in the columns of THE SENTINEL. The petition reads as follows:

Your petitioners respectfully represent that in 1881 the citizens of Fort Wayne secured the passage, by the legislature of Indiana, of a bill for the establishment of a public library in all cities of the state having a population of 10,000 or more inhabitants, to be under the care and management of the board of school directors, to be supported by a tax which was not to exceed one-third of one mill upon a dollar of the assessed valuation of such cities. The law is mandatory upon the council to levy such tax when requested to do so by the board of school trustees. Under this law nearly all the cities of the state have been building up and operating fine public libraries greatly to the profit and satisfaction of all their people, the operation of the law having been satisfactory in the highest degree. Fort Wayne, whose citizens secured the enactment of the law, has the discredit of being the only large city in the state that has not availed itself of the provisions of the act.

"Your petitioners respectfully, but earnestly ask your honorable body to see to it, that no further time is lost in the establishment of a public library, which shall be free to all our people, and give to them what they have the right to demand, namely, the opportunity for that wider information and more general culture enjoyed by the residents of all other Indiana cities."

The petition is being signed by all classes of taxpayers with an alacrity indicative of the strong desire that exists in the community that Fort Wayne should no longer be deprived of the very great advantages to be derived from a public library, free to all our people.

The Candle Fish.

One of the piscatorial curiosities of the North Pacific coast, especially plentiful along the shores of British Columbia, is the fish known to Indians, whites and halfbreeds as the "candle fish." To the scientists he is the eulachon (Thaleichthys pacificus), and is highly esteemed for two reasons. The fish itself is about 11 inches long, resembles the smelt in general appearances, and is caught in large quantities by west coast fishermen during the months of February, March and April. It is the fattest of all known fishes, for which reason large numbers of them are dried and smoked to be used as a warming food during the long vigorous winters so common in that region. Large numbers of them are also run through crude presses, which extracts the oil; this is preserved in skin bags and used much in the same manner as whale's blubber is used by the Eskimos. This "candle fish" gets its common name from the fact that when dried it burns with a bright white flame until entirely consumed. It is much used by the "counters" both of Columbia and Alaska, either with or without a wick passed through its body.—St. Louis Republic.

Free Trip to Chicago.

Separate W-O-R-L-D-S F-A-I-R and use the letters to spell as many words as you can by using the letters as many times as you wish, either backwards or forwards, but not use the same letter in making any one word more times than it appears in "World's Fair."

It is said seventy-five small English words can be spelled correctly from the ten letters contained in "World's Fair." Example: Wad, waif, soar, idol, etc. If you are good at word making you can secure a FREE trip to the World's Fair and return, as The Scott Seed Company will pay all expenses, including railroad fare, hotel bills, admissions to the Columbian Exposition, and $50.00 cash for incidental expenses, to the first person able to make seventy words from the letters contained in "World's Fair," as above. They will also give a FREE TRIP to the World's Fair and return with $25.00 for incidental expenses, to the first person sending sixty words as above. They will also give a FREE TRIP to the World's Fair and return (without cash for incidental expenses) to the first person sending fifty-five words.

To the first person sending fifty words will be given $50.00 in cash towards paying expenses to the World's Fair; to the first sending forty words will be given $25.00 in cash towards paying expenses to the World's Fair, to each of the first five persons sending thirty-five words will be given $10.00 in cash, and to each of the first ten sending thirty words will be given $5.00 in cash.

Only one prize will be awarded to the same person. Write your name on list of words (numbered) and enclose the same postpaid with fifteen U. S. two-cent stamps for a large package of our Choice English Cottage Garden Flower Seeds.

This combination includes the latest and most popular English flowers of endless varieties (same as will be contained in the elaborate exhibit of English flowers at the World's Fair.)

This "World's Fair" Contest will be carefully and conscientiously conducted solely for the purpose of introducing our business in the U. S. You will receive the BIGGEST value in flower seeds ever offered, and if you are able to make a good list of words and answer promptly you will have a first class opportunity to secure a free trip from your home to Chicago and return.

We are spending a large amount of money to start our trade in the U. S., and want your trial order. You will be more than gratified with the result. Send today and address THE SCOTT SEED COMPANY, Toronto, Canada. 20 d3 w 2t

This is to certify that Mr. Peter Kattern, who was arrested and brought before me on a charge of larceny from the Pennsylvania company, that after examining all the evidence carefully, I am convinced that he meant no harm or wrong, that he thought the pieces of ties taken were worthless, and that he took some of them in broad daylight and in the presence of his fellow-workmen, all of whom that I have examined give said Kattern a good reputation for honesty and sobriety and as being a hard-working and industrious man.
